

OUTREACH TO NORTH KOREA

Although the primary focus of Japan Mission is to evangelize the Japanese people, the Lord has also led us to meet the critical needs of other nations in East Asia. One project we have been heavily involved in is the printing and distribution of Bibles to China and other parts of the World.

Another vital ministry the Lord recently led Japan Mission to get involved in, is to help the destitute people of North Korea. We are currently sponsoring Christian workers who are involved in the following projects:

1. Manna Project -- Every few months balloons are launched into N. Korea at night, carrying food, medical supplies, CDs, USBs, tracts and portions of the Bible. Pray that many would be impacted by the word of God as they find these balloons.

2. North Korean Rescue Mission -- Refugees crossing from N. Korea to China face a constant fear of being arrested and repatriated. Rescue workers provide immediate assistance to such refugees. Pray for protection for the refugees and workers, who face various dangers.

3. Resettlement Support -- Emotional and cultural support is offered to N. Korean refugees arriving in S. Korea to help them adapt to life through counseling services, retreats and Bible studies. Many have found the Lord through this ministry after entering S. Korea.

4. Orphanage -- Helps meet the desperate needs of orphaned Chinese-Korean children, born in China who have lost their mothers through deportation, execution or abandonment. Abandoned children are taken in and acclimated into mainstream society. They are also provided with the opportunity to obtain rights as Chinese citizens. Pray that these children would find comfort in our Great Shepherd.

5. Merchant Ministry -- Provides spiritual and financial support for the ministers of the underground church in N. Korea. It also provides tangible materials for the development of a micro-business to aid their community. This helps to empower the ministers as they seek to influence their surrounding community for Christ.

6. Supply Support Ministry -- N. Korean Christians visiting Chinese shelters help to transport food, clothing, medical supplies and multi-media devices containing the Word of God into N. Korea. Pray for the blessing and protection of those smuggling God's Word.

TRUE FREEDOM

"While growing up in North Korea, I do not remember ever being told by my parents or those around me that they loved me," Chun shared. "I was told over and over that I was loved by the Kim family, who were our rulers.

"My earliest childhood memories were that of being constantly hungry. Food was very scarce and the suffering was difficult to bear. This took a heavy physical and emotional toll on me. As I grew older, I remember times when I would give up everything for just one meal.

"My father worked for the government and when I was nine years old, he was taken by the authorities and I never saw him again. Because of this, our family was criticized, shamed and shunned. I was regularly teased and bullied.

"As I grew older, we were bound by strict rules, taught to revere the Kim family and required to show unwavering allegiance to the Communist Party. I felt as though my heart was empty and my soul was being pushed to the brink of death. That is why I decided to escape from my homeland.

"In 2008, I left my mother, siblings, relatives and friends behind, because I knew that it would be a very dangerous journey. It involved crossing the Tumen River to enter China. I knew that from the moment I stepped into the river, the N. Korea soldiers would treat me as a traitor and a criminal.

"If caught in China, I could be arrested and sent back to N. Korea. Then not only I, but also my family would be punished and forced to face unbearable suffering and possible execution.

"After crossing into China, I sold myself to a broker who told me that he could help me get to South Korea. I took a very round-about route and walked most of the way, while facing life-and-death situations every day.

"I finally arrived in S. Korea about one month later. There I learned for the first time what it felt like to be loved, have dignity and experience freedom. The S. Korean government provided me with a place to live and money so that I could start a new life. I was overwhelmed by the abundance of food and the ability to choose things freely.

"In S. Korea nobody was watching me and I spent a lot of time alone, so I struggled to adjust to these freedoms. In N. Korea, I was assigned to work long hours and was under constant surveillance, as strangers would regularly visit to watch us. If I dared to disobey them, I knew that I would have faced severe punishment or certain death.

"Even though S. Korean society was free, it did not quiet my heart, which was still brainwashed by the dictatorship I had been born under. I was confused and under great emotional stress. I missed my family and felt very lonely.

"When I thought of my family and friends who were suffering under that cruel dictatorship, it was hard for me to control my anger. I felt intense guilt and sorrow for escaping and leaving them behind. I started to experience nightmares and lost my appetite.

"Even though S. Korea embraced me, my heart did not feel free. I felt miserable and emotionally scarred from being brainwashed. The pain was so deep that it felt as though my heart was dying. I was in desperate need of something to revive my soul.

"In order to satisfy my hunger and thirst, I decided to attend a Christian camp. That is where I realized that there was another freedom besides the one I had been seeking when I fled N. Korea. It was the freedom and comfort that comes from knowing our Heavenly Father. Matthew 5:4 says, Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted.

"On the third day of the camp, the pastor spoke on forgiveness. I had never wept or cried out for help in my whole life, but that day, for the first time ever, I cried out to God in a loud voice. Oh God, my father was sent to a concentration camp when I was nine. Because of that, my siblings and I were ostracized, bullied and suffered greatly. I was separated from my wife and they sent my sister and cousins to a concentration camp. God, how could You tell me to forgive these people? I cried out while writhing in agony, Father God, please explain this to me!

"At that camp I cried for the first time since I was nine years old. After I had cried as much as I needed, I finally felt peace in my heart. On that day, I received true comfort from the Holy Spirit for the first time in my life.

"God then spoke to me through some Bible verses that I had never read before: Vengeance is mine, I will repay (Romans 12:19). Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you (Matthew 6:33).

"I decided to entrust everything to God and accepted Jesus Christ as Lord of my life. I finally found true freedom, joy and fulfillment in life. I came to realize that true freedom was to receive God's gift of eternal life, become a citizen of heaven and live in His presence. I never had nightmares again.

"I found out that Christianity isn't just a religion, but the Truth itself and Jesus Christ became everything to me." You will know the truth, and the truth will set you free (John 8:32).

Chun was later miraculously reunited with his wife and now serves the Lord by helping other defectors find comfort in Him.

Chun's name has been changed and some details left out in order to protect his identity. □

FACTS ABOUT NORTH KOREA

The population of N. Korea is 25,570,692. Some reports indicate that 2% or about 500,000 people are Christian. Other organizations report far higher numbers. The truth is that it is very difficult to know how many Christians are in this very secretive and heavily controlled society.

North Korea is ranked as the most oppressive place in the world for Christians. Christians are considered to be imperialists, seeking to overthrow the government. Those caught practicing their faith are arrested, tortured, imprisoned and sometimes put to death.

A famous saying in N. Korean culture is: The walls have eyes and the fields have ears. Christians go to great lengths to hide their faith. They often practice in the dark and are very wary of neighbors, friends and family members turning them in, since all citizens are required to spy on each other. Most parents refrain from introducing their children to Christianity until they are older, in order to protect the family.

Parents brave enough to share their faith with their children or extended family are known to gather in the darkened rooms of their homes, where they can only whisper their prayers and hymns. Their Bibles are often scattered pages, in order to disguise the Book.

N. Koreans are sometimes granted permission to visit China, where some have access to Bibles and Christian literature, which are smuggled back in at their own peril.

From the late 19th century until the Korean War, N. Korea was a Christian stronghold -- and Pyongyang was considered the Jerusalem of the East. Despite efforts to eradicate Christianity, reports indicate that the church in N. Korea is actually growing. Only God is powerful enough to break through the darkness of the most oppressive regime on earth. Pray for the Christians of N. Korea.
